“ Food+x has the potential to not only disrupt a multi-billion dollar industry but also significantly contribute to fundamental sustainability goals. Dalibor and the teams' drive and creativity are impressive and it is a privilege to see how bold and visionary this team thinks – seemingly without any boundaries. The combination of a project on top of established and proven businesses is a logical step and they well deserve the attention and potential to advance their reach and network.”

Food+x is a blockchain powered platform built onto existing businesses to reduce food waste. Over one third or 1.3 billion tons of globally produced food ends up as waste. FoodPlusX enables quick, safe and transparent distribution of surplus food through the first decentralized ecosystem for waste reduction.

The project is comprised of the FoodPlusX platform, Robin Food Stores and the Robin Food Bank. The well-established B2B online platform strategically matches sellers and buyers of surplus food. It currently involves 120 leading European retailers, distributors, manufacturers and Horeca organisations. The Robin Food Stores provide public access to quality food that would otherwise end up as waste at discounted prices. The Robin Food Bank collaborates with charities to donate food to needy people. The platform provides two-way product traceability and transparency across the supply chain, increasing trust, saving time, reducing costs and business risks.

Food+x is making food waste history.
